TEAS AND TEA TALK

Five O'clock Tea and English High Tea.

WHAT SHOULD BE SERVED

Fashions in Jackets and Wraps for the Coming Season-How to Give "Chestnut" Parties.

There are many varieties of teas and support, the simplest of which is the of bread and butter, with possibly roses were added with fine effect. The of bread and butter, with possibly some fancy little cakes and tea or concolsts. The simplest form of refreeliments ever offered a guest are possible at a 5 o'clock tea, wafers being much favored. Then there is what the | all save themselves. English call "high tea!" and at this meal we or more hot disnes are serve littled bread and butter, cold dade, andwiches, fore-gras, sardines, lettuce, celery or water cress are served. A new implement for the cutting of bread has the edge finely With this sawlike knife bread may be cut into sides as thin and even as a wafer. The tea is made at the table, the pretty operation being

The season is sufficiently advanced to naticate what will be worn the pre-sent antumn. Military braiding sout-some braiding, applique-work of cloth with buston-noiet edges, rows of stitching and facings of plain cloth contrasting with the dress material are ome of the decurations for autumn. Large buttons will also be used. The odd jacket or bodice to be worn with any skirt has proven so useful, pretty and economical that they have been found positively indispensible and fresh invoices of them for fall wear may be noted in all the large establishments. The straight back or box coat, ugly as it is, has apparently come to stay, as it is still worn by women of fashio

Back in the days of our grandmothers they were ready and provided for any emergency. If a child was scalded or injured in any way, de-manding soft old lines for dressing, a generous roll of the material was forthcoming at once, all clean and ready for In these days when money is more plentiful and the women of the nonsenold have more time, such habits as the saving of old linen disappear. Money can purchase new linen in abundance, but it is the soft old pieces which are needed in case of burns and other skin abrasions. Save the linen pieces and some one will want them.

Some bright person evolved the idea of the "chestaut party" and it bids fair to become famous during the long evenings. Having made out your list have a chestnut burr printed in water color on the corner of your invitation Then have your decorations on the night of the party of the most stereotyped and "chestnutty" order possible. A laughable program can be made up by having some friend sing, "Where Did You Get That Hat;" another recite, "The Boy Stood on the Eurning Deck;" another to sing, "Lit-tle Annie Rooney;" another, "Down Went McGinty," till a number of threadbare songs and recitations have been given. There may also be tab-leaux arranged from "wayback," such as "The Family Flower," i. e. a barrel "Bonaparte Crossing the Rhine," a fish vertabrae across a pork rind; "Mary and John," "Punch," and other topics so familiar as to cause a snort of disdain when introduced on ordinary occasions. "Chestnuts" may be arranged by having a large number gifts. familiar conundrums written on cards and to each one fastened with parrow ribbon, a nice smooth che tout. The nostess takes these cards one by the conundrum passes it over to the person who first guesses the correct anare awarded to the persons holding the largest number of chestnut cards, while the ones holding the fewest are rewarded with the time-honored booby. Sultable prizes are autograph albums, fifteen puzzies, pigs in clover, souvenir spoons, or book marks and embroidered hat bands. Refreshments may consist of roasted chestnuts and bon bons.

Courteousness among the members of the household in the little things of daily life is a great virtue, but for each to have a kindly regard for every difforing sentiment is greater. By this is meant not mere toleration. There is a selfish side to life that all have to face when they come in contact with the busy world. It tends to make us coarse and rude and we need to be constant y watchful lest this spirit invade the home which should gain rather than lose in sensibility. We need, amid the worry and fret of activity, to find intervals for the cultivation of the imaginative and creative forces as conducive to the making of finer sensibilities on which so much depends in making a home where love shall triumph in all seues and happiness reign supreme.

Amid Sweet Pink Roses. Pink roses were used in profusion at the worlding of Heavy M. Houseman, son of Joseph Houseman and Miss. Bertha S. the pretty and charming daughter of Rabbi and Mrs. F. W. Jesselson. The cormony was solemnized at temple Emanuel where the Rabbi officiates. The pulpit was prettily decorated with tropical plants and the bride made a sweet picture in her white gown attended by the Misses Jennie Frequent Helen Houseman who both ware pink gowns and carried pink bental party were David Gers and Wilham Sishier both of New York city and the bridge two brothers, Issae and Million Jesselson who officiated as usbers. At the conclusion of the ceremony an elaborate wedding dinner was served to the wedding party at the residence of Joseph Houseman on Fulton street. From eight to eleven a reception was tendered the bridal couple at the Jesselson residence on Barting and the Jesselson residence on the street and the second street stre couple at the Jesselson residence on Barclay atreet. A protective awning was spread from the carriage block to the house and many were the guests who passed through the narrow way to the brightly lighted parlors where the wealth and beauty of Hebrew society were gathered. Banks of ferns, palma and pines were massed here and there and pink roses were everywhere. The dining room table spread with snowy linen was lighted by pink candles in a massive brass cantelabra. About the base of the candelabra broad pink ribbon was tied the long loops and ends being arranged over the cloth in festivities continued until 11 o'clock when Mr. and Mrs. Houseman de-parted amid a shower of congratulations for their wedding journey the destination of which was unknown to

Gardner Post and Cora Fish of Alpine were wedded at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents in Alpine. The couple proceeded to the lawn, where an arch of ferns and golden rod had been erected, and were united in marriage by Elder Wright of Rockford. Miss Hatte Orser, of this city played Mendsissobn's wedding march as the couple took their places beneath the arch. The bride was accompanied by Pearl Steed of Mill Creek and Mildred Rid-eout of this city, white Alban Fish, a brother of the bride, and S. Lamereaux of Mill Creek officiated as groomsmen. After the ceremony refreshments were served on the lawn, and the couple left immediately for their wedding jour-
